dishes from around the world!

(Colourful food photos)

A warm hello to you! I'm Mrs Gill...

In case you're wondering why I'm dropping in on you like this, let me explain...

As a caterer myself, I know you have a tough job. You want the best quality cuisine for your NHS patients – but sometimes the choice just isn't there.

Nowadays, with so many religious and ethnic communities in the UK, finding the right food to suit everyone can be a bit of a headache. Or at least that may have been the case until now!

At Mrs Gill's Kitchen, we have a superb choice of appetising meals that will solve even your most challenging problems. And if you're not sure who we are... Mrs Gill's Kitchen has been established for over 15 years.

We already supply NHS Catering Managers like yourself in many other parts of the UK. (Not to mention a long list of blue-chip clients including local authorities and other public sector organisations, fellow caterers and restaurants of all types.)

I've made it my life's work to make your life's work easier. In other words, the specialist knowledge and expertise that we have developed over almost two decades is available to you – right now.

To get a flavour of what we can offer, why not visit our website – <http://www.mrsgillskitchen.com> There, you'll find the full story about my company. More importantly, you'll see sample menus and photos of various dishes, not forgetting links to our speciality menu development division, 'Spiced'.

Above all, I think the website shows just how committed we are to customer service. Meeting ethnic and religious dietary requirements can be a complex area. That's why our aim has always been to simplify the entire process to make it as rewarding for you as it is delicious for your patients!

To find out more, why not call us on xxxxx or e-mail xxxx@xxx if there's a specific requirement you'd like to discuss. Alternatively, if the need is pressing, one of our senior managers would be only too happy to pay you a visit.

Either way, I look forward to hearing from you and hope we can do business very soon.

Kind regards

Mrs Gill
