“Terrazzo is the architect's dream flooring - its exceptional versatility with regards to colour, appearance and texture provides a natural canvas for the innovative and creative mind”

Back in style...
Back in force...
Back with a vengeance!

‘Hello!’ to you from Quiligotti...

Make no mistake: the ‘WOW! factor’ is back. Terrazzo flooring by Quiligotti is enjoying a new popularity as specifiers recognise its unique combination of stunning good looks and unbeatable durability.

Innovative, flexible solutions to really impress your clients

In every way, the Quiligotti Terrazzo range is as they come. Terrazzo is quick and easy to lay, and also has a smooth, level finish which is not achievable with other tiled floors.

“Consider too the infinite choice of designs, colours and effects that you can create with this unique material - introducing features that will make your clients really sit up!”

Of course, Terrazzo has been around since the Romans roamed. And yet today, those in the vanguard of building design will still vouch for the incredible flexibility of Terrazzo.

By common consent, Terrazzo is seen as one of the few flooring materials that can make an outstanding contribution to the aesthetics of contemporary structures.

As well as in the concourses of airports and railway stations, Terrazzo is being specified increasingly in locations such as hospitals, leisure centres, offices and restaurants – with great success!

At Quiligotti, we know we have a highly respected product that has been sought out by building professionals since we introduced Terrazzo in the UK in the 1960s.

Rachel Basha, Senior Interior Designer at Llewelyn Davies States,

“The great thing about Terrazzo is that it will stay as good as it looks now and for years to come and cleaning and maintenance is not a problem”

Design opportunities are thick on the ground with Terrazzo

The versatility of Quiligotti Terrazzo doesn't stop at its almost infinite variations in colour, appearance and texture – although our competitors probably wish it did!

Terrazzo flooring from Quiligotti provides endless opportunities to create totally individual design solutions...

It is essentially liquid stone that can be moulded into many different shapes and it can be specified to contain almost any type of aggregate chippings.

Terrazzo flooring can create a sense of space and presence with so many differing projects.

Terrazzo can be teamed with contrasting wood, resin, glass or metal – in so many ways, it's an architect's dream flooring.

Terrazzo's all-weather surface meets the growing demand to link indoor and outdoor spaces.

Its low-maintenance, long-term cost-effectiveness adds to the list of advantages which make Terrazzo one of the most exciting flooring materials on the market today.
